

Communicatio

Ad regem Hokoriae

From His Majesty of Eleuedla, an unworthy sinner, to the Koru of Hokoria:-

Reading the declaration made by the Koru of Hokoria, We, the King of Eleuedla, have decided to not discuss the situation on our behalf (for no forgiveness would ever be expected), but rather on the behalf of Our good friends, Aaron, Niall, and Patreyk, all three whose good reputations have been slandered from the mistake of one, Our mistake.

This mistake in question occurred at 21:44 on the thirteenth of June where We responded to Our own message regarding one Christopher Slant, in which we called him a quite scandalous word ‘faggot’. By this point, We were quite tired of the ridiculousness of his politics, of which he has explicitly called for “[throwing] them [that is, “rightoids”] into a gas chamber”, him calling a simple football game “Genocide Cup”, and other general insanity. Was the word We used appropriate? No, it quite was not. It was a lack of reasoning.

Do We expect or request forgiveness? No, We do not.

However, We do request that You, the Koru of Hokoria, that you find mercy and forgiveness for Our aforementioned friends, of whose reputations are tarnished for Our unreasonableness. It was quite late at night, or in the morning, for Aaron and he commonly does not respond to messages at that hour, nor does he commonly visit them. Similarly, I would argue the same for Niall. For Patreyk, he commonly doesn’t respond to many of our messages there in general, and most likely would not have seen it at all.

The full length of time We have known Our friends, We have not known them to ever use nor particularly condone such language. They ought to be pardoned. We embrace the full punishment of Our actions, and request that they be forgiven for the reasons mentioned by Us aforementioned.

Signed on the fifteenth of June and with much misery,

Elije Augustyn I Obërholtz-Lejal z’San Augustyn
